

ONE ORPHAN DIES, FIVE OTHERS SICK FROM RAT POISON

Children in Asylum Find It in Ash Barrel and Think It Candy.

The five little girls, inmates of St. Michael's, Roman Catholic Home for Orphans, in Greenridge, S. I., who survived the rat poison which they found in an ash can and ate, one of their number having died, were reported to-day as progressing favorably toward recovery. The most seriously ill is Elizabeth Appleton, ten years old, who is in the Memorial Hospital. Little Mary Davis died in that institution yesterday.

At St. Michael's Home this morning it was said that the affair was an accident and that it was not due to the carelessness of any one. The children, in addition to those named, who ate the rat poison, were Helen Usher, ten; Anna Devano, eight; Elizabeth Desmond, ten, and Annie Gallero, seven. They are all being cared for in St. Michael's Infirmary.

While the children were playing yesterday they discovered what they thought was candy in an ash-barrel at the home. It was rat poison swept up after it had been placed about the buildings by a rat exterminating company of Brooklyn several days ago. The children nibbled on the stuff, and later were seized with violent cramps and nausea.

SHELL OF VAULT EXHIBIT IN TRIAL OF ACCUSED TELLER

State Hopes to Prove It Could Be Opened Only With Special
Knowledge—$15,000 Taken.

The shell of the vault of the Title Guaranty and Trust Company's Long Island City branch is being set up as an exhibit of the trial of Theodore M. Tubant, former teller, who is charged with grand larceny. It is understood that the evidence will be mostly circumstantial and that much may depend upon what the jury thinks about the exhibit.

The story is that on the night of July 29, 1921, the vault was supposed to contain $15,000 in cash. The next day only $36,000 was found there. The state claims that Tubant and one other whose name is not made public, had access to the vault at that time. Tubant was arrested at his home, No. 8 West 75th Street, Manhattan, and the prosecution says six $1,000 bills were found in a suitcase hanger there. The shell will be exhibited to show the jury how the door worked and to prove that it could be opened only by one having special knowledge.

NEW POISON VICTIM LINKED BY POLICE WITH KLIMEK CASE

"Women Bluebeard" Ring Alleged Now, With Insurance as Object.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A new victim of arsenic poisoning was discovered to-day by police as they investigated alleged activities of Mrs. Tillie Klimek and Mrs. Nellie Sturmer, held in connection with the deaths of their husbands.

The latest victim was discovered in a Chicago hospital. He lived in the neighborhood in which the two alleged "women bluebeards" resided. Authorities believed the new evidence strengthened their theory that a poison ring conspiracy existed among wives in that section. The women, they alleged, obtained husbands through matrimonial bureaus, had their lives insured and then killed them through slow arsenic poisoning.

Three of twelve bodies to be examined have already shown traces of arsenic poisoning. Three others are now being tested by chemists and the other six will be taken from the ground this week. All twelve were closely connected with the two women now held, and their deaths were said to have been under mysterious circumstances.

steeve of Gramercy Park.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Just as the Pennsylvania Railroad ferryboat Millville pulled away from its slip on the Philadelphia side of the river, a man rushed to the rail and jumped overboard. Railroad employees dashed him out and took him to the Jefferson Hospital, where he was identified as Charles Gildersteeve, aged twenty-three. His residence is said to be Gramercy Park, New York City.
